It's not easy growing up these days.

Young people face challenges, pressures and temptations unimaginable just a few years ago. In a world of turmoil and constant change, parents increasingly look to Adventist education to offer their children the tools they need to survive and succeed in this life, and eternity.

Academically, the numbers speak for themselves.

School Category	Adventist	Public
% of graduates who attend college	85	66
% of graduates who complete college degrees	80	14
% of applicants accepted to medical school	34	9
% of teachers certified.	95	58

Around the world, Adventist education provides an enriching environment in the largest Protestant school system in the world. In more than 6,709 schools and through the inspired efforts of more than 65,679 Adventist teachers, young lives experience critical transformation. Through morning worship, earnest prayer, community service, and mission adventures leading our students to find God and a their future on their journey to excellence.

Principal's Message

Welcome to Laura E Mason Christian Academy (LEMCA), one of the exceptional schools found in the Rocky Mountain Conference of Seventh-day Adventists. We are excited to partner with you to bring quality, standards-based Christian education to your student.

LEMCA is unlike any public, charter, or other private school in Cheyenne. We have teachers working on innovative, cutting-edge processes with a tried and true blue print for success dating back to 1853 with the development of the first Adventist school, and then formalizing under a world-wide system of schools in 1874, under a divine command to rightly train an army of youth.

While each of our schools are unique, they are shaped by our shared mission to show children Jesus, nurture their love for Him and others, teach them to think, and empower them to serve. LEMCA participates in a process that will serve as our road map for ensuring that individual students know Jesus as their personal, loving savior, and they will be able to reach their full, God-given potential.

Academics

Standards are what learners should know (content) and able to do (skills). They serve as the framework for curriculum development. The standards used in all Rocky Mountain Conference schools are established by the North American Division of Seventh-day Adventists Office of Education. These standards reflect the Adventist worldview across the K-12 curricula as well as the integration of national and state standards. The Adventist world view accepts the Bible as the standard by which everything else is measured.

Four key concepts emerge from a biblical worldview that can be used as a lens for curriculum development, as well as informing the essential questions and big ideas of any content area:

1. Creation—What is God's intention?
2. Fall—How has God's purpose been distorted?
3. Redemption—How does God help us to respond?
4. Re-creation—How can we be restored in the image of God?

The Adventist philosophy of Education is known as Imago Dei—In the Image of God. This sums up our purpose as we seek to help children better understand God's original design for them and how they can develop an eternal relationship with Him.
